Learning this week

In maths we have been studying line graphs and how to create them based on data. We must remember that time always goes on the x-axis and to join up the points with a ruler. We have practised interpreting graphs and making our own—this is tough maths but the pupils have embraced it and shown skill in this advanced topic.

In English we have studied diary writing—their creativity in this task has been superb, writing a diary based on our class novel: “There’s a Mummy in our Bath”.

We have begun rehearsing for our production E-A-S-T-E-R Spells EASTER. It’s looking good so far with some brilliant singing and acting. One to look forward to!

MUMMIFIED TOMATOES!

Your child may have told you about how we used Ancient Egyptian techniques to try out mummification on a tomato! Over the last week we have been seeing how well the tomatoes were preserved after 40 days—and the results were impressive. Now all we need to do is rub some oil on the tomato skin to make it shine and look good as new (just like the Egyptians did to their dead bodies after the process).

Spaces available for Guitar lessons (After Eater)

Google Classroom

Your child has a Google Login (usernames and passwords in their Home/Link book) where they can remotely access Google Classroom. This week, we have shown the children how this remote classroom system works and how their class teacher can set assignments, give out research to look at and highlight useful websites and activities to enhance their learning from home. It’s a great tool!
